TITLE Teens at risk. Addiction & depression
PUBL INFO Venice, CA : TMW Media Group, c2005
DESCRIPT 1 videodisc (23 min.) : sd., col. ; 4 3/4 in.
SUMMARY "Many depressed people, especially teenager, also have problems with alcohol or other drugs. Sometimes the depression comes first and people try using drugs as a way to escape. Other times, the alcohol or other drug use come first and depression is caused by the drug itself, the withdrawal from it or the problems that substance abuse causes. obviously, in the long run drug or alcohol use just makes things worse. Although it is often difficult to distinguish which came first, the important point is that if someone has one or both of these problems, the sooner they get help the better, as doing nothing is a recipe for bigger trouble, like serious addiction of failing in school or in life. Teens at risk, teaches how to be honest about both issues - showing how depressed teens can deal effectively with their illness without substance abuse and how to communicate with people who can help them get into treatment - proven to be the only way to really get better and stay better"—Container
