Historical Note

The Thunderbird Hotel and Casino opened on September 2, 1948 in Las Vegas, Nevada, and was the fourth resort constructed on the Las Vegas Strip. The hotel, which took its name from a Navajo legend, was founded by developer Marion Hicks and Lieutenant Governor of Nevada, Clifford A. Jones. The exterior of the hotel contained a stylized thunderbird, while its interior was characterized by Native American themed decor. In 1964 the property was sold to Del Webb, and in 1972 to Caesars World. After the hotel was sold to the owner of the Dunes Hotel in 1977, it was briefly known as the Silverbird Hotel. Five years later, the hotel was purchased by Ed Torres, owner of the Aladdin Hotel, and renamed the El Rancho Casino in an homage to the very first resort to open on the Strip.

The Thunderbird hosted a number of noted entertainers and production shows over the years. It had the distinction of being the resort that saw the Las Vegas debuts of both Nat King Cole and Rosemary Clooney, and was the showroom where Judy Garland made her final Las Vegas appearance in 1965.

On July 6, 1992, the El Rancho Casino resort permanently closed its doors. For eight years the property remained vacant. In 2000 the land was purchased by Turnberry Associates, and on October 3, 2000 the old resort was imploded.

For a detailed history of the Thunderbird, see George Stamos' profile of the Thunderbird Hotel and Casino in the Las Vegas Sun Magazine, May 6, 1979.
